

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

An appliance, in particular a hair styling appliance, having a programmable electronic control that controls operational features of the appliance and where the appliance is equipped with a display screen that provides a visual indication of the status of the operational features on the display.